

Abstract of the Disclosure

An ultra-high-speed radiographic imaging assembly is useful for pediatric radiography to provide images with improved contrast and reduced fog.

- 5 The film includes at least silver halide emulsion layers on each side of a film support that comprise tabular high silver bromide grains. The imaging assembly includes one or more fluorescent intensifying screens comprising a highly reflective microvoided support.